

COUN6000 : New Student Orientation

New student orientation is a pass/fail course that is required of all incoming students to the Counseling Master's program. This course will give new students information regarding the overall program, policies in the Student Handbook, requirements for graduation, and information regarding on-campus departments with which they will interact throughout their course of study.

Credits 0