

EDUC7001 : Graduate Education Orientation

This required online course gives students an overview of the enrolled Graduate Education program at NNU. It includes policies, procedures, and expectations of the Graduate Education department, as well as introduces students to NNU campus departments with which they will be interacting throughout their program. Students learn how to access the Riley Library and other campus resources. They will also learn how to utilize course management software used to deliver online courses and complete NNU requirements, as well as experience success as online learners. The course is repeatable for entrance into different Graduate Education programs. During this course, student accounts in Portfolium are used to house artifacts of learning for licensure and accreditation purposes. Grade of pass/fail.
